The instructions in the Fundamentals in the Sentence Writing Strategy Instructor's Manual are designed to teach students to write four types of Simple Sentences. This instruction can be used as a developmental writing program or as a very fast, "bring-them-up-to-speed" set of lessons. They were designed for teaching students who have difficulty with learning the basic principles associated with sentence construction and written expression. Thus, through these methods, students learn a set of steps and key formulas that help them recognize and write different types of sentences. Instruction in this strategy is systematically sequenced so that students who have difficulty learning have ample opportunity to practice identifying and writing different types of sentences. This manual should be used in conjunction with the Fundamentals in the Sentence Writing Strategy Student Materials manual, which contains the Guided Practice learning sheets and Independent Practice learning sheets that are to be completed by students for each lesson. Since 1979, the instructional procedures associated with the Sentence Writing Strategy have been tested in a host of different settings and with different kinds of students by staff members of the University of Kansas Center for Research on Learning and associated school district personnel.
